

Experiences Related to Cystic Fibrosis

This information was reported to Monroe Products and The Monroe Institute by individuals and/or by professional practitioners about the use of Hemi-Sync® in the late 1990s.

(See also: Hemi-Sync® Experiences and Exercises Relating to the Immune System.)

The drug for cystic fibrosis that seven-year-old Danny has been taking since birth brings on diabetic symptoms and cysts on the lung. During one of his frequent hospital stays, unable to get enough air, he started gasping. The nurse played Lungs: Support & Maintenance, left at the bedside by Danny's mother. Her young patient began to breathe more and more normally, settled back, and relaxed.

***

At home, Danny likes to have musical Hemi-Sync playing when he's in bed. His mother keeps the volume very low, almost inaudible, and when Danny falls asleep, she turns off the sound. More often than not, Danny drowsily tells her, "Don't turn it off, it helps me breathe."

Hemi-Sync® is a registered trademark of Interstate Industries, Inc.
© The Monroe Institute